

(AUTHOR'S NOTE: Inspired by the poem, "Invictus" by William Ernest Henley).

Unconquerable Soul

By: George Zivan

The blackest night will not scare me,
Nor will your deepest, darkest hole;
I am much more than your eyes see,
I'm an unconquerable soul.

This mortal body may bleed and scar,
But death shall find me unafraid;
I am made from the finest stars,
Stronger than anything death made.

And when you think you have me beat,
I will rise even from my grave;
I won't surrender to defeat,
This soul will never be a slave.

Even if this whole earth burns down,
Still I will rise to be free;
My home will not be in the ground,
I am master of my destiny.